WELCOME FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

January 2001

Dear Friends:

We are pleased to welcome you to the 54th Presidential Inaugural celebration – a time of unification, a celebration of the American spirit and a peaceful transition of power. “Celebrating America’s Spirit Together” is the theme of this historic inaugural, which will feature a series of events reflecting this uniquely American experience.

As President George W. Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney prepare to repeat the words of our founding fathers on January 20, 2001, when they each take their respective oaths of office, we invite you to share in the many activities that have been planned to recognize this historic event. Our wish is that your spirit is renewed as you partake in the celebrations and ceremonies that will mark this country’s next presidency.

“Celebrating America’s Spirit Together” is much more than a theme for this inauguration; it is a message that will carry us through the next four years as we remember our past, celebrate a peaceful transition of power and look forward to our future.

Sincerely,

Jeanne Johnson Phillips
Executive Director, 54th Presidential Inaugural Committee

“Greatness is found when American character and American courage overcome American challenges. When Lewis Morris of New York was about to sign the Declaration of Independence, his brother advised against it, warning he would lose all his property. Morris, a plainspoken founder, responded... ‘Damn the consequences, give me the pen.’ That is the eloquence of American action.”

“My friends, we are writing history, inalterably shaping lives and times yet to come. It falls to us to decide whether the coming generations may avert the wars they can, and win the wars they must. That is a heavy responsibility. I am honored to be running with a man who is equal to it. And should we be elected, you have our word: We will prepare the military of the future - where training is thorough and missions are clear. Where equipment is sound and morale is high. The kind of military where men and women are proud to serve and proud to stay. Above all, we pledge to give those who serve a commander-in-chief who earns their respect, and returns that respect in full measure.”

GEORGE W. BUSH

George W. Bush is the 43rd president-elect of the United States. Formerly the 46th governor of the State of Texas, Mr. Bush has earned a reputation as a compassionate conservative who shapes policy based on the principles of limited government, personal responsibility, strong families, and local control.

George W. Bush was born July 6, 1946, and grew up in Midland and Houston, Texas. He received a bachelor's degree from Yale University and a master's of business administration from Harvard Business School. He served as an F-102 pilot for the Texas Air National Guard before beginning his career in the oil and gas business in Midland in 1975. After working on his father's successful 1988 presidential campaign, he assembled the group of partners that purchased the Texas Rangers baseball franchise in 1989, serving as managing partner.

Bush was elected governor on November 8, 1994, with 53.5 percent of the vote. In a historic re-election victory, he became the first Texas governor to be elected to consecutive four-year terms on November 3, 1998, winning 68.6 percent of the vote.

As president, Bush will pursue the same common-sense approach and bipartisan spirit he has in Texas. He has proposed bold initiatives to ensure that America's prosperity has a purpose. He has also addressed improving our nation's public schools by strengthening local control and insisting on accountability; reducing taxes for all taxpayers, especially for those Americans on the fringes of poverty; strengthening the military; saving and strengthening Social Security and Medicare by providing seniors with more options; and ushering in the responsibility era in America.

President-elect Bush is married to Laura Welch Bush, a former teacher and librarian, and they have twin daughters, Barbara and Jenna. The Bush family also includes their dog, Spot, and two cats, India and Ernie.

LAURA WELCH BUSH

As first lady of Texas, Laura Welch Bush has worked tirelessly to promote one of her primary interests – education. As first lady of the United States, Mrs. Bush will continue to focus on this area that plays such an important role in our nation’s future. Her background as a teacher and librarian and her lifelong passion for reading have been the motivating forces behind her education advocacy for all Texans – and now for all Americans.

In Texas, Mrs. Bush launched an early childhood development initiative in 1998 to help parents and caregivers prepare infants and young children for learning and reading when they enter school. The initiative includes a family literacy project for Texas – a collaborative effort with the Barbara Bush Foundation for Family Literacy.

She also helped organize a celebration of Texas books and authors called the Texas Book Festival in 1996 that has since become an annual fundraiser for Texas public libraries. During the last four years, 352 Texas public libraries have received Texas Book Festival grants totaling $889,845. Mrs. Bush also serves on several boards, including the University of Texas Graduate School of Library and Information Science Foundation Advisory Council and the national Reading Is Fundamental Advisory Council.

Mrs. Bush is a native Texan who was born in Midland. She earned a bachelor’s degree in education from Southern Methodist University and a master’s degree in library science from the University of Texas at Austin and taught in public schools in Dallas, Houston and Austin from 1968 to 1977. She and George W. Bush were married in Midland in 1977, and they are the proud parents of twin girls, Barbara and Jenna, who are named after their grandmothers.

RICHARD B. CHENEY

Vice President-elect Richard B. Cheney has had a distinguished career as a businessman and public servant, serving three presidents and as an elected official. Throughout his service, Cheney served with duty, honor and unwavering leadership, gaining him the respect of the American people during trying military times.

Cheney grew up in Casper, Wyoming, and was born in Lincoln, Nebraska, on January 30, 1941. He earned bachelors and masters of arts degrees from the University of Wyoming. His career in public service began in 1969 when he joined the Nixon Administration, serving in a number of positions at the Cost of Living Council, the Office of Economic Opportunity, and the White House.

When Gerald Ford assumed the presidency in August 1974, Mr. Cheney served on the transition team and later as deputy assistant to the president. In November 1975, he was named assistant to the president and White House chief of staff, a position he held throughout the remainder of the Ford administration.

After he returned to his home state of Wyoming in 1977, Mr. Cheney was elected to serve as the state's sole congressman in the U.S. House of Representatives. He was re-elected five times and elected by his colleagues to serve as chairman of the Republican Policy Committee from 1981 to 1987. He was elected chairman of the House Republican Conference in 1987 and elected House minority whip in 1988.

Cheney also served a crucial role when America needed him most. As secretary of defense from March 1989 to January 1993, Mr. Cheney directed two of the largest military campaigns in recent history – Operation Just Cause in Panama and Operation Desert Storm in the Middle East. He was responsible for shaping the future of the U.S. military in an age of profound and rapid change as the Cold War ended. For his leadership in the Gulf War, Secretary Cheney was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom by President George Bush on July 3, 1991.

Cheney married his high school sweetheart, Lynne Ann Vincent, in 1964, and they have grown daughters, Mary and Elizabeth, and three granddaughters.

LYNNE V. CHENEY

Lynne V. Cheney, wife of Vice President-elect Richard B. Cheney, has earned a reputation as a forceful advocate for improving education in America from kindergarten through college. Like her husband, she is a distinguished public servant in her own right, having served as chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities. She is also a leader in developing high standards and sound curriculum for public schools.

She is a member of Texas Governor George W. Bush's education team and has served on an advisory group that revised Texas standards for the study of history. Firm in her conviction that educational excellence is key to our nation's success, Mrs. Cheney has written and spoken widely on the need for high standards for all students and for tests that will show whether these standards are being achieved.

As chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities from 1986 to 1993, she was a national spokesperson for education reform and issued numerous reports advocating historical literacy and recommending the teaching of core knowledge in all fields of learning, from literature to science and mathematics.

A widely published author, Mrs. Cheney has also been a novelist, newspaper columnist, magazine editor, and television commentator. She is the author of Telling the Truth (Simon & Schuster, 1995), a book on the social impact of cultural trends, and co-author with her husband of Kings of the Hill (second edition, 1996), a history of the House of Representatives.

Mrs. Cheney earned her bachelor of arts degree with highest honors from Colorado College, her master of arts from the University of Colorado, and her Ph.D. with a specialization in nineteenth-century British literature from the University of Wisconsin. She and her husband have two grown daughters, Mary and Elizabeth, and are the grandparents of three granddaughters.

HISTORY OF THE INAUGURATION

Each presidential inauguration opens a new chapter in American history. It is a momentous occasion in which Washington welcomes all the country's citizens to honor and celebrate the peaceful transition of power to the nation's next chief executive. The inauguration is a unique opportunity to meet the country's new leaders, who will share their insight into the politics and power of the presidency over the next four years.

President Abraham Lincoln perhaps best summed up this historic event when, facing a divided nation, he said,

"It is but ordinary charity to attribute the fact that in so attaching himself to the party which his judgment prefers, the citizen believes he thereby promotes the best interests of the whole country, and when an election is passed, it is altogether befitting a free people that, until the next election, they should be as one people."

INAUGURAL SWEARING-IN CEREMONY

On Saturday, January 20, 2001, at the historic West Front of the Capitol, George Walker Bush will be sworn in as the 43rd president of the United States. He will recite the 35-word oath that every president has spoken since 1789, pledging his allegiance and commitment to the country's highest office.

The ceremony will begin at 11:30 a.m. on Saturday, January 20, at the United States Capitol. It is recommended that you arrive at least one hour prior to the start time.

THE OATH

The oath of office is found in Article II, Section 1, Clause 8 of the United States Constitution and reads:

Before he enter on the Execution of his Office, he shall take the following Oath or Affirmation:—"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the Office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my Ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

History tells us that in 1789, during the inauguration of our first president, George Washington impulsively kissed the Bible upon which his hand rested and added the words "So help me, God" – which became the words spoken by every president since.

The story of the president's title is another interesting aspect of inaugural history. While Washington was traveling en route to the first inauguration, Vice President-elect John Adams and Congress were deciding on Washington's official title as leader of the country. Adams wanted "His Most Benign Highness," but a congressional committee decided on the title we use today: "President of the United States."

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS

Following the oath, the president addresses the people, setting the tone for the future administration and outlining plans for the country. It is an event that is covered by thousands of members of the media and broadcast all over the world. But the public has not always been privy to the significant words of our next president. In 1789, only the members of Congress assembled in Federal Hall heard Washington's inaugural address. After James Madison's swearing-in 20 years later, the speech was published in the newspaper for all to read. When James Polk took the oath in 1845, Samuel Morse, inventor of the electronic telegraph, sat near him on the platform – tapping out the news on his machine.

The shortest inaugural address was President Washington's second on March 4, 1793, which contained only 135 words. The longest was given by President William Henry Harrison on March 4, 1841 – and contained 8,495 words.

THE DATE

The first president inaugurated on January 20 was Franklin Delano Roosevelt in 1937. The 20th amendment to the Constitution, ratified in January 1933, changed the inaugural date. Previously, the official inaugural date was April 30, a date set at the first inauguration because of a particularly harsh winter that made travel difficult and precluded the gathering of delegates until then.

INAUGURAL FIRSTS

There have been many firsts in the history of presidential inaugurations. New York City was the nation's first capital and the place where George Washington was sworn in as our nation's first president. Thomas Jefferson was the first to be sworn in as president in Washington, D.C., in 1801; in fact, this year marks the 200th anniversary of that historic occasion.

It was in 1857, when James Buchanan became president, that the inauguration was first photographed. In 1949, the inauguration of President Harry S. Truman and Vice President Alben W. Barkley was the first to be televised. And in 1957, Dwight D. Eisenhower became the first president inaugurated after the passage of the 22nd amendment, which limited to two the number of terms a president can serve:

Amendment 20: Section 1.

The terms of the President and Vice President shall end at noon on the twentieth day of January, and the terms of Senators and Representatives at noon on the third day of January, of the years in which such terms would have ended if this article had not been ratified; and the terms of their successors shall then begin.

There is no doubt that inaugurations are a special occasion in our American history. Not only do we reaffirm our oneness as a country, but we also revel and celebrate our uniquely American spirit and solidarity. Whether one envisions the inaugural stand, draped in patriotic bunting for McKinley's 1901 inauguration, or recalls the sheer simplicity of a 35-word oath, it is difficult not to celebrate the pride that comes with being an American citizen in these United States at this glorious celebration of our political history.

54TH PRESIDENTIAL INAUGURAL — CALENDAR OF PUBLIC EVENTS

The events surrounding the inaugural in recent history have traditionally been designed to reflect the style and personality of the president-elect and set the tone for the new administration. With the theme of “Celebrating America’s Spirit Together,” this 54th Presidential Inaugural is no different.

The following events have been carefully planned to reflect this theme – and the work that President-elect George W. Bush and Vice President-elect Dick Cheney will accomplish, together with the American people. These events include information current as of January 8, 2001.

THE INAUGURAL BALLS

The inaugural ball had its humble beginnings when George Washington danced the minuet after his inauguration in 1789. Our fourth president, James Madison, and his wife, Dolley, were the guests of honor at the first official inaugural ball, held at Long's Hotel in Washington, D.C. in 1809. Later, President Martin Van Buren's inauguration featured two balls, and President William Henry Harrison held three to meet the ever-growing demand for tickets.

Inaugural festivities are a way to honor the incoming president and vice president, as well as keep alive our country's rich spirit and embrace the many Americans who want to take part in celebrating our nation's rich history and commemorating the transfer of presidential power. The following is a list of the 54th Presidential Inaugural Balls:

SECURITY PROCEDURES

To ensure the safety of our citizens, screening devices will be used at all events where President-elect Bush and/or Vice President-elect Cheney are scheduled to attend. The carrying of briefcases, knapsacks or parcels of any kind will greatly delay the screening process and therefore is strongly discouraged. Based on previous inaugural experiences and our desire to accommodate all citizens who wish to experience these historic events, guests should plan to arrive AT LEAST ONE HOUR prior to the published event time to facilitate the screening process.

WILL CALL AND TICKETING

If you ordered your tickets after January 10, 2001, your tickets will be waiting for you at the Inaugural Events Will Call Office, located at the Ronald Reagan Building and International Trade Center in Hemisphere Suite A. The building is located at 1300 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W. The nearest Metrorail stop is Federal Triangle, which is accessible by the Orange and Blue lines.

Will Call hours are from 9:00 am to 6:00 pm Tuesday, January 16, through Saturday, January 20. Keep in mind that if someone is picking up your tickets for you, they must have a signed letter with your signature authorizing them to pick up your tickets on your behalf.

The Presidential Inaugural Opening Celebration, the Inaugural Swearing-In Ceremony and the Presidential Inaugural Parade are all open to the general public and tickets are not required. In order to accommodate the maximum number of people, the public viewing areas are standing room only. We strongly recommend that you arrive early to secure a prime view.

2001 PRESIDENTIAL INAUGURAL PARADE

History of the Inaugural Parade

The inaugural parade is a tradition that dates back to our first president, George Washington. On his journey from Mount Vernon to New York, each city welcomed him with great revelry and decoration.

The custom of staging a parade to honor the new president dates to Thomas Jefferson's second inaugural on March 4, 1805. After taking the oath of office at the Capitol, Jefferson mounted his horse and rode back to the White House, "followed by a large assemblage of members of the Legislature, citizens, and strangers of distinction." Later presidents continued this custom and the inaugural parade has been a standard event ever since.

Featuring representatives from nearly every state, the parade symbolizes our country's democratic ideals and unification under the new president. In addition, many presidents have used their inaugural parade to set the tone for their administrations. For example, in 1829, Andrew Jackson rode down Pennsylvania Avenue without a military escort to show his commitment to democracy. President James K. Polk's inaugural parade in 1845 reflected the expansionist mood of the country, and in 1885, Grover Cleveland used his parade to promote national unity.

SCHEDULE OF EVENTS

The Presidential Inaugural Parade will take place at 2:30 pm on Saturday, January 20, on Pennsylvania Avenue between 3rd Street and 15th Street, N.W. It is recommended that you arrive at least one hour prior to the start time.

As this is an outdoor event, warm clothing is recommended, and preparations should be made for the possibility of inclement weather. The parade will last a little over an hour and includes more than 10,000 participants.

This is a free event, though tickets will be required for special viewing areas. No ticket is required for general public viewing areas.

TRANSPORTATION

The Presidential Inaugural Committee welcomes all area residents and visitors to use Metrobus and Metrorail systems. This efficient and environmentally responsible system is easy to use and convenient, and will help you further enjoy the events surrounding the 54th Presidential Inaugural.

Special inaugural Metro passes will be sold at all Metro locations. Normal hours of operation are weekdays from 5:30 am to midnight, and Friday/Saturday nights until 2:00 am.

The only event not directly accessible by Metro is the opening ceremony at the Lincoln Memorial. On January 18, 2001, Metrobus will provide a shuttle system to the Lincoln Memorial.

On January 20, 2001, Metro Service will expand services beginning at 5:30 am and continuing until 2:00 am to accommodate the inaugural swearing-in, parade, and balls. Parking at Metrorail parking facilities will be free on January 20, 2001. Metro will provide representatives at Metrorail stations to help direct parade ticket holders to appropriate Metrorail stops. Please refer to the “Important Numbers” section of this guidebook for Metro Information Line telephone numbers.

In addition, wheelchair lift-equipped buses will augment all inaugural shuttle routes. Please check newspapers for Metro information on Metro exit closures and other information or check its website at www.wmata.com.

Parking at all inaugural event sites will be extremely limited, and many will require a parking permit. For your convenience and safety, please plan to use the public transportation system (Metro).

INAUGURAL COMMEMORATIVE INFORMATION

Remember your visit to our nation's capital and the historic 54th Presidential Inaugural by purchasing official collectible items. The following official inaugural publications, as well as many other pieces designed especially to commemorate the inauguration of President-elect George W. Bush and Vice President-elect Richard B. Cheney, are available. All these items may be purchased through our official vendor website at www.inauguralgiftshop.com, or you may call 1-888-467-9001 to place your order.

OFFICIAL INAUGURAL PROGRAM

An inaugural "must" that includes the official biographies of the Bushes and Cheneys by prominent writers with never-before-seen family photos, as well as a schedule of inaugural events, and a colorful historic inaugural overview with rare photos of memorabilia and remembrances from past inaugurations. This distinctive 20-plus-page, full-color document of the inauguration of the 43rd president will be a historic keepsake for years to come.

OFFICIAL INAUGURAL COMMEMORATIVE BOOK

An exquisite coffee table remembrance of all inaugural events, featuring a rare photographic historical account of inaugurations. More than 500 photos by award-winning photographers are interspersed throughout 100 pages of essays and stories by renowned authors. This handsomely bound historic edition is a stunning addition to any library during the 200th commemoration of the White House.

OFFICIAL INAUGURAL COLORING BOOK

A one-of-a-kind keepsake for children that is both instructive and fun, commemorating the inauguration of the 43rd president and featuring pictures of many U.S. presidents and first families. This is a wonderful children's gift to remember the 200th anniversary of the White House and its distinguished inhabitants.

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Visit our website at www.intacta.com to download our INTACTA.CODE Reader.
2. Follow the detailed instructions for installation and setup contained within the download page.
3. Scan the INTACTA.CODE image with any flatbed scanner at 600 dpi resolution.
4. If your scan does not work, please visit www.intacta.com to access our Frequently Asked Questions Guide.

Intacta Technologies, Inc. developed the INTACTA.CODE™ printed on this page. Intacta provided this technology to IDEAL at NCR, a not-for-profit employee-led organization that supports persons with disabilities. IDEAL is using this technology to make it easier for persons with print disabilities to scan documents into their computers. Scanned documents can be easily read, utilizing screen-reading software. Using a TWAIN compliant 600 DPI scanner, the code on this page can be decoded into the full text contained in this Inaugural Guidebook. The software needed to do this can be freely downloaded from the Web. Instructions for doing this appear on this page.
